

How to scan

Doxie is a standalone device that stores scans in its built-in memory.

Only use Doxie while disconnected from your computer's USB port.

1 Turn on Doxie

Press and hold the power button for a moment. When the status light stops blinking, Doxie is ready to scan.

2 Scan

Insert paper to the left, face up, and level. Hold the sheet in until Doxie starts feeding automatically.

To scan the back of a page, just flip it over and insert it again.
Scan in any order – you'll organize later when you download your scans.

Your document is now stored in Doxie's memory. Keep scanning – later, you'll download into Doxie's software.

Advanced options

Doxie scans at 300 dpi by default (green LED bar). Tap the power button briefly to switch to 600 dpi (orange LED bar).

Doxie lets you scan anywhere – no computer or power outlet required.

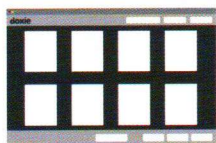

When Doxie's battery is running low, the power light flashes orange. Connect Doxie to its power adapter when you can. You can keep scanning while Doxie recharges.

Doxie can also charge via your computer's USB port, however, it cannot scan and charge via USB simultaneously. Use the power adapter for unlimited scanning.

If you'd prefer to scan to an SD card or USB flash drive, insert the media into the appropriate slot in the back of the scanner before scanning. To switch back to internal memory, remove all external media.

Doxie's software

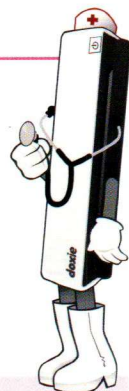

When you're ready to import, organize, save, and share your scans, download Doxie's companion software to your Mac or PC. The software optimizes your scans, sends to the cloud, creates searchable PDFs, and much more.

Set up Doxie

1 Plug in Doxie to power and charge

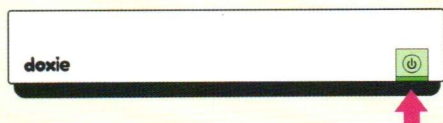

Plug Doxie into a power outlet to power the scanner and charge Doxie's battery. The power light turns orange – you can set up and use Doxie while it charges.

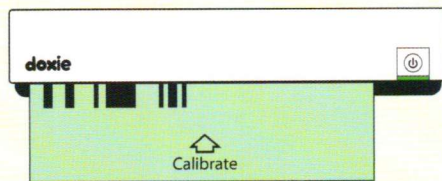

When Doxie's battery is fully charged, the power light turns off. You can then disconnect Doxie and scan anywhere – no computer or power outlet required.

2 Turn on Doxie and calibrate

Hold the power button for a moment. When the status light stops blinking, Doxie is ready to scan.

Insert the included calibration sheet, face up – Doxie will automatically calibrate, completing the setup process.
